BRITAIN FORCED OFF THE GOLD STANDARD. Momentous Cabinet Decision: Bank Rate Increased to Six Per Cent: Warning to the Country.

DEMORALISATION OF MONEY MARKETS ABROAD.

ACTION ONLY | COLD COURAGE
TEMPORARY. | AND WARM FEET.

GOVERNMENT CIRCLES CALM.

GREAT BRITAIN has been forced off the gold standard. The valiant efforts of the last six weeks to prevent this calamity were brought to naught during the week-end, when heavy withdrawals taxed the resources of the Bank of England to breaking-point, necessitating emergency measures immediately. Legislation abandoning the gold standard temporarily is being rushed through all stages of the House of Commons and the House of Lords to-day.

Meantime, the Bank of England has increased the discount rate to six per cent. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had issued a warning to British citizens who act selfishly in the crisis. It is hoped that there will be no panic and for the present, no restrictions will be placed on banking transactions or trade. In the event of attempts by British citizens to speculate in foreign currencies, immediate and drastic steps will be taken.

The development has caused the greatest uneasiness on the New York Stock Exchange, but in American banking circles, it is applauded as a wise move in the present emergency.

STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSED FOR THE DAY.

London, Sept. 21.
As from midnight, Great Britain will be off the gold standard.
This was the purpose of an official communique issued last night from No. 10, Downing Street, whither the Prime Minister had rushed from Chequers for a Cabinet conference and a meeting with representatives of the Bank of England.

The communique states: "The Government has decided, after consultation with the Bank of England that it has become necessary for the time being, to suspend the Operation Clause of the Gold Standard Act of 1925, which requires the Bank of England to sell gold at a fixed price."

"A Bill for this purpose will be introduced immediately and rushed through all stages of both House of Parliament to-morrow (September 21)."

"In the meantime, the Bank of England is authorised to proceed accordingly, in anticipation of action by Parliament, pending which the Stock Exchange will be closed."

The communique adds that His Majesty's Government have no reason to believe that the present exchange difficulties are due in any substantial extent to the export of capital of British nationals.

Chancellor's Warning.

Undoubtedly the bulk of the withdrawals of gold have been for foreign account.

"They desire, however, to repeat emphatically the warning given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer that any British citizen who increases the strain on exchanges by purchasing foreign securities himself, or assisting others to do so, is deliberately adding to the country's difficulties."

Only Temporary.

The communique concludes: "The ultimate resources of this country are enormous and there is no doubt that the present exchange difficulties will prove only temporary."

The Bank of England announced late last night that the Bank Rate had been increased from four and a half to six per cent.

No Excitement at Home.

Despite the momentous nature of the announcement regarding the gold standard, there was an atmosphere of complete calm and an absence of any trace of excitement or alarm in Government circles to-night.

Downing Street was almost deserted at the time of the issue of the communique, and the Cabinet Ministers, all of whom were present, left with their heads high in the knowledge of work well done.

Heavy Withdrawals.

Inquiries by Reuters' representative in diplomatic circles showed that the Bank of England hoped right up to the last minute to be able to avoid this step, but heavy withdrawals on Friday and Saturday necessitated that emergency measures be taken immediately.

Government circles emphasised that the departure from the gold standard must only be regarded as a temporary measure and further emphasised that there was all the difference in the world between the country going off the gold standard with a balanced budget and departing from the standard with an unbalanced budget.

Treasury officials also reiterated that Mr. Philip Snowden is determined, at all costs, to balance the budget, which meant that the situation was far less serious than might otherwise have been the case.

An announcement, which was made simultaneously with that increasing the bank discount rate, followed the unexpected meeting of the Cabinet, and detailed the reasons which led to the decision.

The announcement says that despite the large credits obtained from New York and Paris, the withdrawals of foreign balances from London during the last few days accelerated so sharply that the Government felt bound to take the decision.

Foreign Obligations.

It will not affect the obligations of the Government, of the Bank of England's obligations that are payable in foreign currencies.

The gold holding of the Bank of England amounts to £130,000,000 and having regard to the contingencies which may have to be met it is inadvisable to allow this reserve to be further reduced.

£200,000,000 Withdrawn.
Since the middle of July, funds amounting to more than two hundred million pounds have been withdrawn from the London Market. The withdrawals have been met partly from gold and foreign currency held by the Bank of England and partly from the proceeds of the credit of fifty million pounds which the Bank of England secured by the Bank of England from New York and Paris, and partly from the proceeds of the French and American credits amounting to eighty million pounds recently obtained by the Government. During the last few days the withdrawals of foreign balances have accelerated sharply.

ceeds of the credit of fifty million pounds which the Bank of England secured by the Bank of England from New York and Paris, and partly from the proceeds of the French and American credits amounting to eighty million pounds recently obtained by the Government. During the last few days the withdrawals of foreign balances have accelerated sharply.

Cabinet Reluctant.

The Government have arrived at their decision with the greatest reluctance. But during the last few days the international financial markets have become demoralised and have been liquidating their sterling assets regardless of their intrinsic worth.

In the circumstances there was (Continued on Page 12.)

DOLLAR AND THE POUND.

An Uncertain Future.

Local banking circles this morning could give no inkling of the effect of the British Government's decision in Hongkong, though it is obvious that if sterling depreciates to any considerable extent, the dollar will appreciate in value, in terms of sterling.

The quotation this morning was 117/8ths, representing a further improvement, however, was not influenced by Britain's departure from the gold standard. The slump in sterling in New York on Saturday was probably the important factor.

The market is quiet, largely because to-day is a Jewish holiday.

THE KWONGSANG DISASTER.

COURT OF INQUIRY TO-MORROW.

A Court of Inquiry into the Kwongsang disaster is being held at the Marine Court to-morrow morning.

Three survivors, who are at present in the Colony having come from Shanghai on board the Empress of Asia, will give evidence.

The Hon. Comdr. Hole is presiding, and with him on the bench will be Lieut. Comdr. L. G. Addington, R.N., of H.M.S. Tanar, Captain R. A. Pritchard, Master of the s.s. Borneo, Captain F. S. Jenkins, master of the s.s. Changchow and Captain C. Stringer, master of the s.s. Kwangchow. The Court will sit at 10 a.m., and it is proposed to go fully into the circumstances of the disaster.

TOKYO ROCKED BY QUAKE.

SEVERE SHOCK TO-DAY.

Tokyo, Sept. 21. An unusually severe earthquake rocked the whole of the city of Tokyo at 11.20 this morning.

Numbers of people rushed into the streets in alarm and the buildings swayed unpleasantly.

The shock appears to have been felt over an exceptionally wide area, including West Japan, but hitherto no casualties and no serious damage has been reported.

SHOOTING MYSTERY SOLVED.

GUARD FIRES TO SCARE THIEVES.

The mysterious wounding of a young Chinese while lying asleep in a cargo boat in the Yumati shelter early on Saturday morning, leading to his removal to hospital with a bullet in the left hip, fired from an unknown source, has been found to have a simple explanation, as is not infrequently the case with these "mysteries."

Police enquiries have established the fact that the bullet came from the carbine of an Indian guard on special duty at the M.B.K. canteen in the vicinity. He is believed to have fired the shot in an endeavour to frighten away thieves who had designs on the coal.

KUEICHO MEETS BAD WEATHER.

SAILOR LOST OVERBOARD.

Stormy north-east winds and very rough seas with a strong swell, were experienced by the s.s. Kueichow, which arrived in port on Saturday from Tongku and Weihaiwei.

The master, Captain D. Williams, has reported to the Harbour Office that a sailor fell overboard and was drowned. Attempts made in a rescue proved futile.

The Kueichow is a 1,220 tons vessel, and is owned by the China Navigation Steamship Company, Messrs. Butterfield and Swire.

JAPANESE MARINES LINE SHANGHAI STREETS.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST MOB VIOLENCE.

MANCHURIA QUIETENS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Shanghai, Sept. 21.

THE JAPANESE authorities are apprehensive lest the dramatic events in Manchuria, the occupation of the leading cities by Japanese troops, should lead to anti-Japanese outbreaks in China Proper. Troops have been landed at Tsingtao and it is rumoured that a large contingent is being sent to Tsinanfu.

In order to prevent mob violence against the large number of Japanese residents in the Hongkew District in Shanghai, approximately five hundred Japanese Marines were on duty yesterday and to-day in that section of the Settlement, stationed with fixed bayonets every few hundred feet throughout the main thoroughfares.

The marines are drawn from the large force stationed at the Japanese Base in North Szechuan Road.

The guards assumed duty on Saturday night, directly the first sign of anti-Japanese feeling was noted, and regular reliefs are taking over the assignment, day and night, at stated intervals.

To further safeguard Japanese interests in Shanghai, a special committee was formed at an emergency meeting held at the Japanese Consulate-General yesterday.

The Minister to China, Mr. Shigemitsu, the Consul-General, Mr. Mura, the Military Attaché, General Tashiro, the Naval Attaché, Captain Kitakawa, the commander of the Marines, Captain Shibayama, the Shanghai Municipal Councillors, Mr. Fukushima and Mr. Okamoto, the chairman of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Yone Sato, and the chairman of the Street Unions, Mr. Hayashi, were among those present.

The situation appears to be well in hand at the moment, but trouble is feared if agitators get to work.

Russo-Japanese Talk.

Moscow, Sept. 20. M. Marakhan, the Assistant Commissar for Foreign Affairs, received the Japanese Ambassador, with whom he discussed the latest events in Manchuria. —Reuter.

Geneva, Sept. 20. The last word in regard to the Japanese action at Mukden and other places in Manchuria, has not yet been spoken. The Chinese and Japanese delegations to the League Assembly are maintaining for the present an attitude of reserve.

The Japanese delegation has received an account of the events in Manchuria which has been communicated to the League, but in the interests of a satisfactory settlement, they decline to make any statement to the public.

Neither delegation is anxious to aggravate the situation.

The Japanese appear to be awaiting a move on the part of the Chinese, in view of the fact that the Chinese have not yet received instructions from Nanking.

The next few days will doubtless see developments. —Reuter.

"Times" Attitude.

London, Sept. 21. The "Times" in a leading article on the fighting in Manchuria, says it is clearly unnecessary to preach moderation at Tokyo.

The Japanese have endured with remarkable patience a series of affronts.

The refusal of Chinese Nationalist politicians and publicists to recognise the vital interests of Japan in Manchuria, and the immense advantages of Sino-Japanese co-operation is a disquieting phenomenon, but there is no excuse for the Japanese officers who struck a blow without consulting the Government.

They have, says the "Times," (Continued on Page 12.)

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

GIVEN TO THE LATE MISS
LEUNG TSUI-HO.

At the memorial service given to the late Miss Leung Tsui-ho, an undergraduate of the Hongkong University and member of the University Christian Association, last evening at St. John's Hall, H. K. University, a large gathering of friends and relatives of the deceased and members of the University Christian Association assembled, when prayers and addresses were delivered by Miss Hutchinson of the Ying Wah Girl's College and Rev. C. L. Cheung.

Mr. Ng Yew-seng, the chairman of the University Christian Association, presided, and referred to the deceased lady as being a most charming person whose demise would mean a great loss to the Association. The sad news of her death during the summer holiday came as a great shock to her large circle of friends both at the University and otherwise.

Miss Hutchinson mentioned in her address that the late Miss Leung Tsui-ho joined her College some fifteen years ago (in 1916) and since then it had been the joy of her teachers to watch her making steady progress from the kindergarten to middle school, and finally when she entered the University last January. It was a joy to see her responded to new ideas with great diligence.

Miss Hutchinson also referred to the devotion and keenness which the late Miss Leung showed towards her work at the Ying Wah College, the Hop Yat Church School, the Y.W.C.A. summer school and the University Christian Association. She had the distinction of being also the first pupil of the Ying Wah Girl's College to enter the University.

The late Miss Leung's father thanked those present for their sympathy expressed towards his daughter, at the conclusion of the proceedings.

JEWELLERY THEFT PROCEEDINGS.

HOUSEBOY COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Tam Hop-kam, a houseboy in the employ of Captain and Mrs. J. Krogh-Moe, of 18, Peak Mansions, was committed for trial by Mr. Williams at the Central Magistracy on Saturday, on a charge of theft of jewellery worth over $4,000 belonging to his employers. Accused stated he had nothing to say in reply to the usual caution before committing.

Arising out of the case, two pawnbrokers, doing business under the names of Po Yuen and Wah Yik respectively, from Shamshipo, were proceeded against in respect of two summonses accusing them of accepting some of the stolen articles on pawn while having reasonable cause to suspect unlawful conduct on the part of the woman (convicted and sentenced in previous proceedings) who placed the articles with them.

Det. Sergt. Macdonald, conducting the case for the police, admitted that although a diamond ring set with a sapphire was recovered, it was not included in the list circulated amongst pawnbrokers.

On that ground the summonses against the Po Yuen was dismissed. The other pawnbroker was fined $100 in respect of a pearl-mounted finger ring.

All the articles recovered in two pawnshops were returned to the owner without payment.

KOWLOON SCOUTS.

ST. ANDREW'S TROOP ANNIVERSARY.

On the occasion of the 11th anniversary, the 1st Kowloon (St. Andrew's) Troop of Boy Scouts held a muster in the grounds of St. Andrew's Church on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of parents and friends. Amongst those present were the Rev. E. A. Armstrong (District Commissioner for Kowloon), Rev. N. V. Halvard, M.C. (Assistant Commissioner for Training Camp), and Lieut. C. G. H. Christian, R.A. (Assistant Commissioner).

Under the leadership of Scoutmaster R. Dornier and Assistant Scoutmaster R. H. Wong, the Troop, after commencing exercises, gave a demonstration of first aid, a new feature being the use of bicycles as stretcher conveyances. A trestle bridge was next built, after which games were played.

The Rev. E. A. Armstrong welcomed the encouraging presence of so many visitors and spoke briefly on the aims of the movement. He mentioned the success of two members, Patrol Leader J. Miller and Assistant Patrol Leader A. L. Sanh, who had both gained their First Class Badge and all-round cords. The former had also secured the King's Scout badge. Both members were the first to have such success within the 11 years of the Troop's existence, and it gave him (the speaker) great pleasure to present them with the awards.

A special service in connexion with the anniversary was held at St. Andrew's yesterday morning, when the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, M.A. (Commissioner and Deputy Camp Chief) preached on Scout ideals. The service was attended by Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs, and other units in the scout organization of the Colony.

After the wedding, a reception was held at Messrs. Lan, Crawford's Restaurant, where the bride and bridesroom received the congratulations of their friends. A dinner-party will be held at the Man Kwok Restaurant, West Point, this evening. Many friends have been invited to attend.

SPECIAL COURTS.

IMPORTANT GERMAN DECREE.

Berlin, Sept. 19. To "protect public safety and cleanse German economic life and the taxpayers' conscience," the Government is asking General Hindenburg to sanction an emergency decree authorising the establishment of special courts to deal summarily with cases comprising "gross acts of political terrorism, serious cases of criminal acts by business men, and evasion in regard to taxes and foreign currencies."

It has been explained that the decree is necessary because previous decrees calling on taxpayers to detail their holding in foreign currencies and securities had not had the desired effect.

The emergency decree, which was published to-night, creates a State Commissary with the power to control banks to enable the Government to obtain information regarding the position of banks and the influence of the banking policy in general economic interest.

The decree does not affect the Reichsbank or other banks of a private character, but it is intended chiefly to counteract the tendency to take up foreign credits to an extent that is likely to lead to a repetition of the last crisis.—Reuter.

INCIDENTS OF THE RECENT CUBAN REVOLT.

A prisoner of war in Cuba's long smouldering revolt, Raoul Menocal, son of former President Mario G. Menocal, is shown above as he entered a patrol wagon in Havana for the last stage of a journey to Cabanas Fortress Military Prison.

Prepared for an attack on a rebel munition store, a detachment of Havana police are shown being rushed through the street. In an abandoned furniture factory they seized hundreds of rounds of ammunition and a huge supply of arms.

Mr. Norman Black, the winner of the International Tourist Trophy Race at Dublin is shown wearing the victor's garland. B. Borzacchini, in an Alfa-Romeo car, was second.—(Times copyright).

Heart of Liane

by MABEL McEILLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Liane Barrett is fascinated by Van Houten, man of the world, who has made exacting demands to her. When his resentment is announced to her, Liane is threatened with a divorce. She is on her way to a hotel with a travelling company when she is taken ill. Liane leaves Mrs. Cleopatra's home on Long Island to nurse her back to health.

Cass frets against accepting the hospitality of the rich Mrs. Cleopatra and during her convalescence Liane accepts the proposal of Clive, her patron's son. It is to be a marriage of convenience. In Cass' delirium, she has babbling of some mystery concerning the girl's birth.

Thomas Lord, house guest at the Cleopatras, dislikes Liane and tries to come between her and Clive. Liane is threatened with blackmail. Shane McDermid, police officer who once befriended Liane, threatens the blackmailer off. At a ball given for the Prince of Slavaria, Liane disappears, the victim of kidnappers. Clive, McDermid and Chuck Desmond, reporter and friend of Liane, start a search. She is taken to a lonely house on the shore, and during a struggle with one of her captives, falls and hurts her head. The men leave her in charge of a woman called Muller. Meanwhile Clive and a police officer pick up the trail. Clive finds Liane's pearls, stained with blood, where she has dropped them, stealing out of the sinister house.

CHAPTER XXIX

Strong arms carried Liane. They seemed curiously gentle. The man bore her as lightly as though she were a bit of this-world-down.

"Whoever he is, he's better than those I left," thought the girl drowsily. She was not fully conscious even yet. She remembered escaping from that horrible house and she remembered a voice calling "When, there!" A man's voice. Then she had stumbled and unconsciousness had overtaken her.

The man moved swiftly. Liane kept her eyes shut very tightly. She feared if she opened them the safety that now surrounded her might vanish and she might discover herself back in that grim prison with the fat woman guarding her.

Then she heard shouts, voices. The man swore once, softly and efficiently. Liane felt a dazzle of light on her eyelids and opened them with a start. The headlights of a car shone full on her face. She felt herself lowered gently. Warm robes were bundled round her.

"You!" she cried astonished to Shane McDermid who bent over her.

"The kid himself," McDermid said. His smile was grim. A little group of men closed in around them. The police lieutenant was giving orders in a sharp, fierce voice.

"This car belong to them?" he asked. A tall man in a great coat said, "I think so. We've got both birds trussed up in the garage. They expected to make a getaway but found they had a flut and were tinkering with it when we got here. The old woman won't talk. They want to kill her for falling asleep on them." The man laughed.

Liane inquired feebly, "Where am I? Why—that's Clive's car! I know the headlights. They're special. He must be around somewhere."

"So?" Shane McDermid's voice was quizzical. "Boys, go back to the house and take a look around. Something may have broken since you left the rear."

But there was no need for this. A white-faced Clive broke through the brush.

"Liane!" he cried. "You're safe. Thank God!"

"I don't know what it's all about," she said between laughter and tears. "But if you know how good you look to me—at this minute!"

She put one hand to her bandaged head. Clive thought he had never seen her look so utterly adorable. Like a child who has been ill and who rejoices in the promise of an outing.

He fell on his knees beside her. "I've been frantic—" His voice broke.

Liane was moved. "I'm so sorry," she said. "It's been dreadful for you. What does it all mean?"

"The girl back at the house has told us," Clive explained. "It was a blackmailing scheme. Her sweetheart was one of the men who kidnapped you. She was terribly jealous. The woman at the house slipped out and called her up when the man was alone in the room with you." She came to see what was going on. We met her and Muller suspected she was mixed up in it somehow."

Liane looked up at Shane. "How on earth did you happen to know about it?" she marvelled.

He glanced obliquely at Clive. "I'd been warned there was funny business going on," he said. Clive asked "What?" sharply. Shane evaded him. "Whenever one of these 'millionaire baby' engagements is plastered in all the papers," he said, "we get lots of trouble. Lists of presents and so forth stir the mob's up."

"Oh, I forgot to give them to you," Clive said, diverted. He held out his hand and the girl saw that he had the pearls.

"Well now, you'd better be getting along home," he said. "And a lucky girl you are, too." Liane smiled at his bluster. She saw beneath that and knew he had been watching, guarding her, ever since she had first told him about the threat at the night club.

"Thanks for everything," she said when she had been lifted into the seat and bundled in fur robes. "Nothing at all. Just my job," Shane blustered. He was watching with the tail of his eye as the men marshalled Mary Powleski and the two men into a police car. Officer McLugh was busy bossing them. He was having the time of his life.

"They muddled that," Shane said absently. "Comes from having too many women in these racketeers!"

Liane's eyes were dancing. "You don't hold with women?"

"The big man stared at her, squaring that formidable Irish jaw of his. "They're all right. In their place."

Clive's foot found the starter. He was racing the engine now. He leaned out, said to Shane above the roar, "Can't thank you, McDermid! If you hadn't been on the job—" He choked on the words.

"I want to come to see you tomorrow," he added.

"Any time. You'll want to prefer charges, maybe. But we have these fellows on other counts, anyway. Dope peddlers, they are." The lieutenant waved to them. Liane could hear him blustering, as they drove away.

"Well, well, that's a good night's work."

Clive drove as if the demons were after him.

"You didn't let mother know about all this?" Liane exclaimed above the wind and the motor.

Clive shook his head. The girl glanced at the dashboard clock. "Only three!" she marvelled. It seemed impossible that two short hours before she had been dancing at the Hunt Club, fresh and carefree in a rose pink gown. So much had happened since. She reached for the vanity mirror in the car's pocket and gazed at herself in horror. A bedraggled bandage decorated her brow. It was stained with blood.

Clive turned to her, asking, "Headache?"

"A little."

"We'll stop in the village and run out Doctor McNeil. I want to be sure no infection sets in."

The old doctor, roused from his slumbers, dressed and rebanded the wound. It was a brief cut, far up under the hairline. "No scar will mar your looks," the old man assured her gravely.

As he worked Liane could hear Clive's voice, speaking over the telephone in reassuring accents.

"Quite all right. Really, she is. We'll be home in 15 minutes."

"That was mother," he said, returning. "She was on her car but I soothed her down. Thought you must surely be dead."

The old doctor looked at them with shrewd, bright eyes. "Bit of an accident, that was," he told them. "Didn't know you were one of these one-arm drivers, Mr. Cleopatra."

"I'm not," Clive laughed shortly. He said, "Some thugs tried to carry off Miss Barrett here. You may read of it in the papers although I hope we can manage to keep it out."

"Ah!" The physician shook his head. "There's a lot of rogues about these days ready to do harm to anyone."

and all the female contingent hastened to obey, with offers of hot water bags, spirits of ammonia, and what not.

"She's had a severe shock, the poor child," Mrs. Cleopatra said, when she and Clive were alone in the study 20 minutes later. "I've asked Nora to sleep on the couch in her room on the chance she might wake and be frightened. What a dreadful experience!"

Clive was pacing up and down like a caged animal.

"And all the time I was thrash about doing nothing—" he burst out after a minute. "I lost my head. Didn't know what to do or where to turn. If it hadn't been for that fellow McDermid!"

His mother shuddered.

"Don't think of what might have happened," she cried. "It's too frightful. They've got the men, you say?"

"They have," Clive told her grimly. "They'll be punished to the limit of the law."

They sat silent for a few minutes. Then the old woman spoke again. Her voice held a new quality. "The marriage must take place soon," she said firmly. "It's dangerous letting things go along this way. Who knows what might happen to the poor child with all these cranks about? That is what they must be. I feel sure of it!"

Clive brooded over the fire. McDermid seemed to think Liane has enemies," he said with some reluctance.

"Nonsense," declared the old lady. "Utter poppycock. I hope he didn't say that to her. She might get fanciful about it and that would never do. No, she needs your name, your protection."

"Thanks!" The young man's short laugh was bitter.

His mother ignored this. "The Prince telephoned just before you came in," she said. "He said his was mired in some swamp-out-near-Babylon. They were following a car they thought answered the description and discovered there were two young policemen in it. He was very much chagrined."

"No more than I," Clive admitted. "Although even if McDermid hadn't come in-time perhaps I should have been able to save Liane."

The thought rankled that he had been too late to be her rescuer.

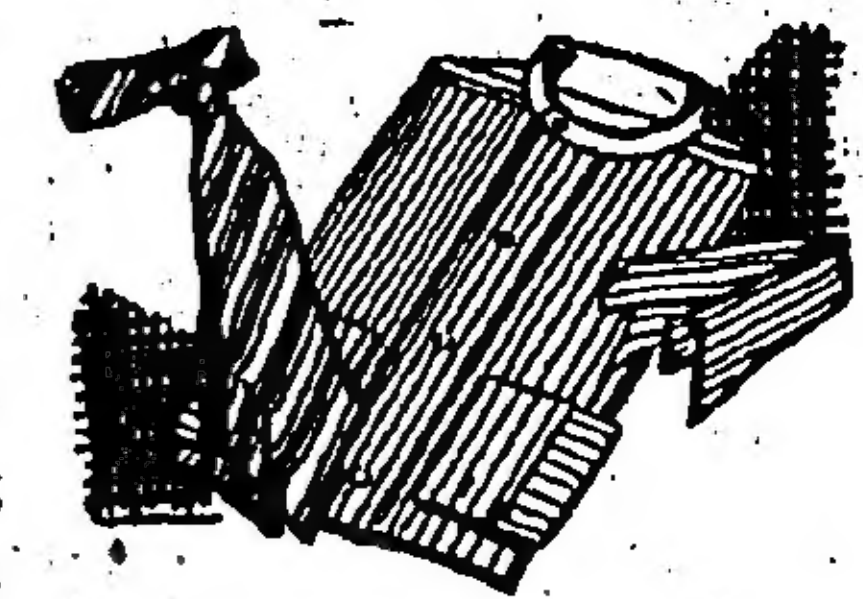

"Go to sleep and forget about it," his mother advised. She patted his shoulder. "What a really good sort she was, he reflected. Perhaps he had never appreciated her until now."

"The Drums of Jeopardy" is the story of a man who, maddened through sorrow, seeks to kill every male member of the family he holds responsible for his grief. One of the princes (Russia just before the Revolution) is the locale at the start of the story) has betrayed Karlov's daughter and she has ended her life. Her lover has given her the famous Petroff necklace—a chain from which Karloff gets each of the Petroffs and also the Secret Service agent, the heroine and her aunt into his power—but all do not fall a prey to his diabolical vengeance! The villain is eventually trapped and is destroyed by the fate intended for the youngest Petroff, who has fallen in love with a pretty American art student who first gave him refuge and then shared his dangers.

FINE FILM SHOWING AT KING'S.

One of the finest films seen in Hongkong for some considerable time is now showing at the King's Theatre. It should not be missed. "Body and Soul" is its title, and it is a drama of the Great War, although the actual war atmosphere is subordinated to that of a drama.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1931.

THE NAVY'S GRIEVANCES.

There are few, if any, residents of Hongkong who do not sympathise with the Lower Deck on the drastic reductions of pay they are being asked to accept as their share of the Home Government's economy campaign. At the same time, it is to be hoped that there is no truth in the suggestion that the grievances of men on the China Station may be aired by "demonstration." Such action would be deplorable, and is, in any case, unnecessary. The men of the Atlantic Fleet have done sufficient to call attention to such anomalies as exist and it is inconceivable that the Admiralty would confine their measures of alleviation to those who venture protests. Meanwhile, there seems to be a tendency to exaggeration
among the keenest of the com-plainers. We have it from an ex-naval man that the contribution of "One Not Accepting the Reduction Philosophically" is full of inaccuracies. The correspondent pointed, for instance, to the cases of the many men in the Navy, married and not old enough to draw marriage allowance. But the Government can hardly be blamed for that. The age limit is set at 25 years, and any man taking a wife before that age must do so with the full knowledge that he will not be entitled to any allowance. The blow of the cut falls upon him more heavily than upon his unmarried colleagues, but, even so, it must be an exaggeration to assert that such a rating may have lots of children.
Then again, the statements regarding marriage allowances are rather confusing. We find there is no naval grass-widow at Home entitled to 28/- per week from the Admiralty, unless her progeny total twelve or more. The sum of 28/- is made up of the man's allowment from his pay, a minimum of 14/- per week, and marriage allowance according to a set scale from the Government. The rating makes the Government grant up to as large a sum as he can afford from his pay. It is on this score that the married men who entered the Service before October, 1925, feel most dissatisfied. A considerable proportion of the cut in their pay may have to be passed on to their wives. If we take the case of an A.B. with seven years service, entitled to draw about 4/6 a day. He contributed, perhaps, 17/6 per week to his wife's marriage allowance, keeping 14/- for himself. His pay is cut by 1/- to 3/6. If he maintains his marriage allowance on the same basis, his own share is reduced to 7/-.

It is obvious that the married man has a genuine grievance.
The reduction in his pay is in many cases about 23½ per cent.
and in his own share of the total,
possibly 40 to 50 per cent. It seems altogether anomalous that he should lose so heavily when there are other public servants, in far better circumstances from whatever point of view is taken,
who are merely to suffer a reduction according to the Ministry of Labour's index figure, and yet others, whose pay is not subject to automatic fluctuations in accordance with cost of living figures, who are to give up a mere five per cent.

The Government seems to have relied upon the "Silent Navy" living up to its reputation. But,
to use a nautical expression, they "missed the boat" and the Navy decided, rightly or wrongly, to make themselves heard. One can hardly blame them. The naval man who wrote to us a few days ago used admirable restraint when describing the conditions under which the Navy tries to keep itself happy, as exacting. Far more forceful terms have been used, not entirely without justification.

Courting the Muses.

Ten years ago two Englishmen wrote a book, "Under the Butch-stone." For a whole decade they tried without success to find a market for it, nine publishers rejecting it. Now it has been published, more than 30,000 copies have been sold in England, and an American edition is being published soon. But for Jonathan Den-wood, one of the two authors, the good news has come too late. He is dying, and he told a friend recently:—"I am so ill now that I cannot enjoy the luck or success that has come so suddenly. While my book was kicked from publisher to publisher I desperately needed money for the skilled medical attention which is now too late.
If 300,000 copies were sold it would make no difference." In the long history of the arts this tale has been repeated many times.
Poe saw his girl-wife die and lacked even the means to keep her warm in her last hours; since then his books have sold all over the civilized world. Cezanne could hardly give his paintings away while he lived; now each canvas is worth thousands. Whitman's friends had to help support him in his old age; "Leaves of Grass" to-day sells infinitely better than it did in his lifetime. The instances could be multiplied many times. Clearly, then, the man who tries to earn his bread by following one of the arts is courting many risks. The one consolation is that the artist's chief reward is never a thing that can be measured in dollars. To be sure, the artist suffers from poverty quite as much as anyone else. But the difference is that he can comfort himself with the consciousness of success even though he has not a cent. The lawyer (let us say) who cannot support himself is pretty clearly a poor lawyer; the novelist or painter who is always broke may be one of the supreme artists of the age. For the artist, after all, is a man apart. He follows a

The procedure of a would-be suicide who sought death in the waters of the contrast, by comparison with other cases. Instead of throwing herself in, a middle-aged woman concerned in the latest incident walked slowly and deliberately down some steps and had waded into deep water when her intention was realised by people in the vicinity and a prompt rescue carried out. The woman, concerning whom little is revealed except that her name was Hui Yuk-long and that she is a married woman, was taken

Let Us Have Noise!

By LORD GORELL.

WHEN I had to try to envision the future the other day for a big audience of teachers assembled from many parts of the world, I could not begin until I had examined the present, and I could not do that until I had reviewed the past. And from this general survey one rather unexpected fact seemed very conspicuously to emerge: that the world as it is to-day is only 13 years old!

It is easy to illustrate the truth of this. Imagine three men, intelligent, each for his age well educated, one an Egyptian or Chinese of the 10th century B.C., one a Roman contemporary of Christ, and one an English squire of 1800—these three, given an interpreter could talk together with appreciation and understanding of their several ways of life and thought.

Add a representative of 1931
and they could not begin to believe in him—he would merely be an incredible impostor.

A World Transformed.
The very old of to-day have seen the four big groups of inventions which have utterly transformed the world, railways and steamboats,
the telegraph and the telephone,
and motor-car and the aeroplane,
and, finally, wireless and broadcasting.

These have closed up humanity,
they have made a mockery of both Space and Time, as all the generations of mankind since Adam knew those two forces: by 1918 they were all established as part of life.
It is a New World we live in, 13
years old!

The changes that have followed are all pervading. There is nothing in human existence which is not affected. But it is with one exception: change that I want to deal
here, the change in our attitude to noise.

In the Old World noise was regarded as an irrelevant and vexat-ious excrescence upon life; in the New it is a companion, desirable and welcomed for its own sake.

Noise a Playmate.

In the Old it had scarcely any existence: the loudest sound that ever affronted the ears of our ancestors—apart from the exceptional and strictly limited plunk of a cannon—was the rumble of whegs and the clatter of horses'
hooves on the uneven, cobbled roadway within a town.

In the New it can hardly be evaded anywhere: if the country can still be said to have any depths,
then in the depths of the country
one can enjoy the music of an old motor-car battling with a cattle-track or revel in a flight of airmen outroaring the larks.

Man is so constituted that he loves that to which he is used and adores that which he associates with his childhood. That is a profoundly fortunate dispensation of Providence. To the present generation, in its cradle during air-raids and bombardments and brought up as innocent associates of the pneumatic drill, noise is a playmate, a blessing, even a necessity.
So far from evading it, the youth of to-day stretch out both hands
to it.

Music? Of what real enjoyment is it to them unless it is made up of a series of ejaculatory, cacophonous discords unlike any ever heard in previous eras outside the range of savages' war-dance? And the instruments that produce it—are they not just what children have always delighted to use?

Just 13 Years Old.

How often have we not all of us
known—and heard—a small boy rattling a tin can filled with stones or beating a bit of iron on the rallings, blissful just because he is making a noise that to older sensibilities is a hideous outrage?
The glorification of youth to-day is due, it seems to me, to the simple fact that the world is young, just 13 years old.

The music we hear on all sides
is not an isolated phenomenon; it arises naturally out of modern life.
No door of any motor-car shuts quietly; all have to be banged.
We like banging doors; we say in effect, "Hurrah! Now we're off!"
Bang! Then the whirr of the self-starter, the roar and splutter of the engine, probably a merry backfire or two, and away we go.

It is said that no man (or woman) enjoys smoking in the dark; except by means of pain in a burnt finger, it is soon impossible to tell whether pipe or cigarette be still alight. Similarly no young thing on a motor-bicycle, a younger thing on the pillion (shades of our grandmothers!) can enjoy racing along above a silent machine;
without the rattle and thump-thump-thump of the cylinders how can they know that they are going fast enough?

And to add to the fun, thank heaven that even on new by-pass roads all corners are not yet eliminated, or the excuse for honk-honk-honk for a couple of hundred yards or more would be thin.

Where Would Youth Be?

Noise! Let us have noise and plenty of it! What would Youth be without Noise? We all know of the mother who hearing no sound in the house bade her daughter
"Go and see what Tommy's doing, and tell him he mustn't!" Youth that is silent is up to mischief;
that is one of the best accepted
maxims of humanity.

It is not true that the youth of to-day make noise because they want to be nuisances or because they are more frivolous. Noise is as essential to them in their work as in their play. Anyone who lives beside a waterfall soon ceases to notice it, would feel the lack of its accepted clamour if it ceased, would find sleep a difficulty in a silence.

Need Noise to Work.

P. G. Wodehouse has as much truth as humour when he makes a town-dweller in one of his books visit the country and complain bitterly about the "twittering" of "blasted little birds" which woke him at dawn. So it is, without exception, with many a young man and woman of to-day, the inheritors of this astonishing New World that is now ours.

Carlyle could only work in a soundproof room; some of our best young writers can only work when well surrounded by noise, the wireless and gramophone on at once.
Similarly, the other day Miss Anita Graw swam the length of the Bosphorus encouraged by the gramophone. Does it matter, then, this worship of noise and its companion, the ugliness and destruction so obvious to all lovers of English beauty?

It would if it were permanent,
but it is only a phase. Youth love noise, they love the sense of power that destruction gives them; the past means nothing to them, the future is everything. But no one and nothing remain young; even already we grow used to the New World, and with increasing years and experience we shall begin to build and not destroy, to evade and not seek noise.

Human nature alone never changes, and there is no need for lamentation.

KWANGSI PEOPLE ALARMED.

ANNAMITES CROSS THE BORDER.

The vernacular press to-day
published a dispatch from Lung-chow, Kwangsi, saying that a large number of Annamite revolutionists have lately been crossing the Kwangsi border.

The inhabitants of some of the Chinese villages along the frontier are somewhat alarmed owing to the possibility of outrages again occurring like those of December 28, 1930, and March 22 and April 17 of this year, when Annamite soldiers and bandits, alleged to be carrying French-made rifles, crossed the frontier and committed acts of plunder, arson and murder.
The Chinese authorities are investigating the matter. Central

PRESIDENT HOOVER ARRIVES.

NEW LUXURY LINER IN PORT.

FLOATING CASTLE.

Majestically pushing her immense tonnage up the harbour waters this morning came the much-heralded Dollar liner President Hoover, the last word in United States shipbuilding, with tall raking masts and funnels and symmetrical lines embodying force together with beauty.

Once aboard the Hoover, the feeling is one of unrestricted space with a total absence of that cramped stuffy atmosphere that always went with the passenger liners of a decade or so ago. Windows instead of ports and beds replacing bunks dispel the notion that the state-rooms are shipboard cabins; heavy furniture, artistic prints and thick carpets make it hard to believe that the public rooms are not lounges and saloons of some huge palatial shore hotel.

Over 600 Feet Long.

In plain technical language, the President Hoover is a twin-screw steamer, with an over all of 653 feet, beam of 81 feet, depth of 70 feet, maximum draft of 34 feet and a displacement of 33,500 tons. To the traveller and tourist it is a floating castle in which, in addition to the swimming pool and other luxuries that present-day liners boast, there are shops, talking pictures, radio, garage for 100 motor cars, elevators and a verandah cafe.

It is in the interior decorations that the President Hoover can base its claim for exquisite beauty. Beautifully carved and inlaid woods, from the far corners of the world, find their place in the lobbies, in the lounges in the smoking rooms and in the library.

A Thing of Beauty.

The mahogany in the writing room and library once grew in the forests of darkest Africa; the prima vera, found in the exquisite panels of the lobbies come from Central America; the satinwood from India; the White Philippine mahogany from the Philippines Islands; the Bubinga from Africa; the teak from India and Java; the Padouk from Africa or India, and the Harewood, a beautiful textured wood, dyed by a certain process in Germany, all aid in making the President Hoover a thing of beauty. In all cases the colour harmony is beautiful yet dignified and inviting.

Every advantage that modern sea travel offers can be found on the President Hoover, with everything produced on a magnificent scale. The children's room in particular is a real magic cave for the young folk, where merry-go-rounds, slides, and pits and other means of childish amusement are available.

Safety, speed and comfort can be claimed by the President Hoover, which has entered the Orient service as another monument to United States shipbuilders.

CHILD'S BED IN A DARK CELLAR.

THREE PEOPLE SENT TO GAOL.

Ill-treatment of an eight-year-old child led to sentence of two months' imprisonment being passed at West London on William Andrew Boyle, window-cleaner, Rectory-road, Fulham, his wife Elsie, and Mrs. Winifred Adams, of the same address.

The boy ill-treated was Joseph Goff, the child of Mrs. Boyle before her marriage.

Mr. Pierson, for the N.S.P.C.C., said that apparently Joseph was an unwanted child. He was not allowed to sleep with the Boyles' children and usually slept in the scullery.

The Boyles were tenants of Mrs. Adams, who was paid 10s. a week by them to look after Goff. It was alleged that she and Mrs. Boyle, with the knowledge and connivance of Boyle, made the child sleep every night for two months in an underground cellar, where there was no light of any kind, and on a bed which was scantily furnished.

Wild, Hunted Look.

Inspector Lavelle, of the N.S.P.C.C., said that the boy's schoolmaster told him that often the child would come to school with a wild, hunted look.

Adams said she was sorry for what had happened, but the boy was dirty and a little thief. What she did by way of punishment was to try to bring him up as a decent citizen.

LADY COMMENDED IN COURT.

CAPTURES THIEF WHEN BOARDING FERRY.

KOWLOON INCIDENT.

How a European lady's pluck led to the arrest of a thief was related to Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when a man named Wong Hing was charged with stealing a purse containing $4.17 at the Jade Tree Shop, Peninsula Hotel, on Saturday afternoon.

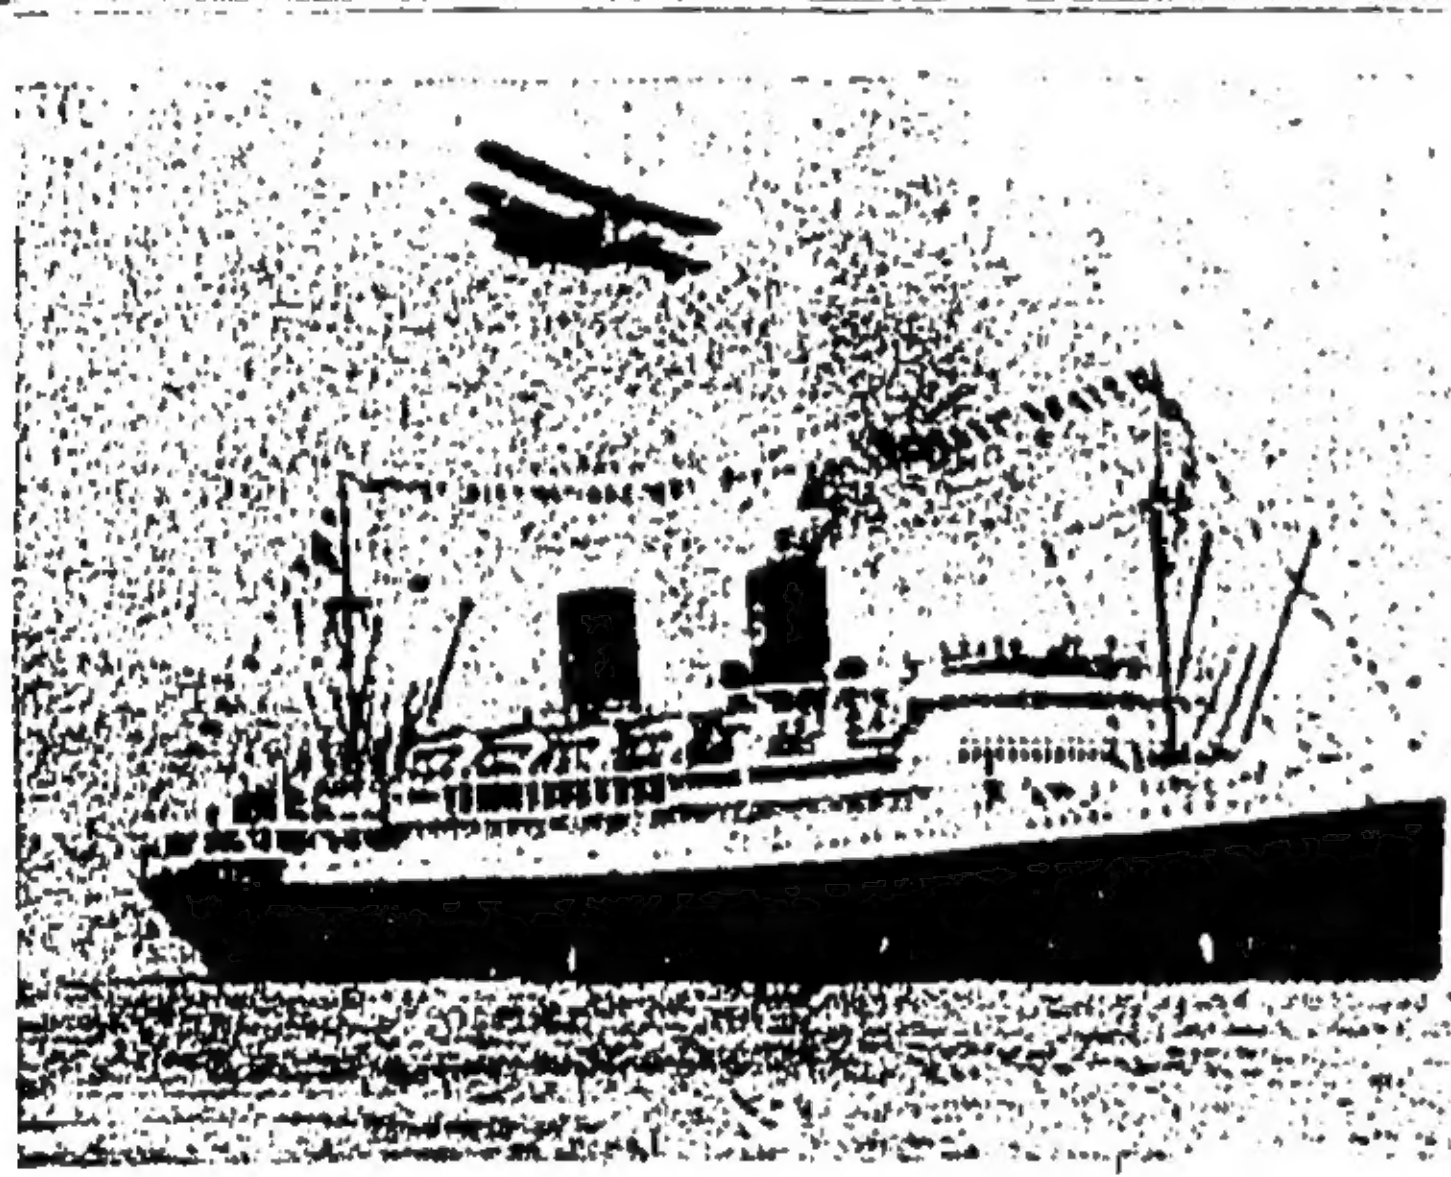

Inspector Elston, who prosecuted, said at about 2.30 p.m. on Saturday, Mrs. Sutherland, the manageress of the Jade Tree Shop, was in the shop when the defendant went in and examined some articles. He chose a ring, tendering a $10 note. She had no change at the time and was going to send her "boy" out when the defendant stopped her. He had his note in his hand all the time, and when she told him she had no change, he intimated that he did not want the ring he had chosen. He then walked out of the shop.

After defendant had gone, Mrs. Sutherland discovered that her purse had disappeared. She immediately suspected the defendant and thinking he would be going to the Star Ferry, she rushed to the wharf and was just in time to see him going on to the ferry. She caught hold of him, and later handed him over to the police.

In Full Control.

Inspector Elston, in conclusion, said Mrs. Sutherland had full control of the situation all the time. His Worship:—I am sure she did.

Defendant denied the charge of stealing and also the alternate one of receiving stolen property. In the witness-box, Mrs. Sutherland land described what happened from the time defendant entered the shop to the time she caught hold of him at the ferry wharf and handed him over to the police.

An Indian constable on duty at the Star Ferry wharf testified to Mrs. Sutherland calling to him and handing over to him the defendant whom she accused of having stolen her purse.

In referring to the Indian constable as an "Indian devil," defendant was rebuked by the Magistrate who advised him not to talk of a police officer like that.

Defendant said he had just come down from Canton and had no employment in Hongkong. He was going to Peking and was only passing through here. He denied that the purse was found in his pocket when arrested, alleging that Mrs. Sutherland had it in her hands at the time.

His Worship convicted defendant on the charge of stealing.

Another Charge.

Before his Worship passed sentence, Inspector Elston brought against accused another charge of returning from banishment before the expiration of 10 years. His record showed that he had been banished twice from Malaya and was banished from Hongkong on January this year.

His Worship sentenced defendant to three months' hard labour on the charge of stealing and another nine months for returning from banishment.

His Worship congratulated Mrs. Sutherland on her plucky action in arresting the defendant, saying it was a very courageous thing to do.

"No Fuss—at All."

Inspector Clark, who was on the Star Ferry launch when Mrs. Sutherland arrested the defendant, said it was done very quietly without any fuss at all. She just caught hold of him and said "You come back," in such a way that he had no idea what the whole thing was about. He thought at the time that defendant had not paid his fare!

LEGAL RIGHT TO DOCUMENTS.

APPLICATION BY MR. TODD.

PERMITTED TO COPY

An interesting legal point arose in the course of proceedings under the Opium Ordinance before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, when Mr. Todd, of the Imports and Exports Office, applied for the retention of certain documents although he had dropped a charge of dealing in opium against a Chinese, named Lal Wing, explaining that he had not sufficient evidence to proceed. Mr. Todd found his justification under Section 31 (f) in seizing, removing and detaining documents or books which had appeared to him likely to be, or to contain, evidence of such dealing in opium.

For the discharged accused, Mr. M. K. Lo raised a strenuous opposition. The prosecution, he said, had no legal right to documents which they might regard as suspicious and they should return them now that they had withdrawn the charge. Such conduct he characterized as "blowing hot and cold by turns."

The man in the case might be a dealer of opium in Canton, but if the prosecution could prove that he was a dealer in Hongkong, naturally they would not have dropped the proceedings. The documents were seized with the view to the charge being brought when they would be produced as evidence. That charge having now been dropped, he could not understand the object of detaining the papers.

His Worship was asked to make a judicial order for the return of the seized documents.

Mr. Todd offered a compromise in an alternative application to be allowed to copy the documents. He promised to return them

(1) Assuming that an international agreement could be arrived at whereby silver reserves were maintained by the banks and utilized for the stabilizing of international money rates, what would there be to prevent two countries, bent on industrial domination, secretly combining with the object of ridding themselves of their silver, accumulating gold and then declaring a silver exclusion policy? The price of the white metal would immediately slump and the gold holders would have achieved financial and industrial supremacy.

(2) With the increased demand for silver under bimetalism, would the enhanced price not encourage heavier production and how could stability be maintained with a metal that has lost the essential merit of being rare in coming up from the earth as a by-product? It is possible that bimetalism could be introduced to the world's advantage at the moment, but the complexity of our exchange system would be tremendously increased thereby and too much would depend on international goodwill and confidence to ensure any permanent improvement in our industrial affairs. There is another way out of the difficulty which combines simplicity with safety.

By real, hard wealth, I mean anything that can be applied to the production of the necessities of life. Gold is a form of wealth, but owing to the demand for currency purposes it has a fictitious high value and even with this in its favour, it represents a very small proportion of a nation's total wealth lying in factories, mines, agricultural areas, shipping, etc. France, to-day, has a big accumulation of gold while we are practically destitute of it, but our total national wealth runs into thousands of millions sterling and we are probably the richer nation of the two.

The simple barrier is not a practical proposition to-day, but trade remains barter no matter how involved we make it appear with our weird and wonderful exchange systems, and the nearer we can approach the simplicity of the original procedure the more easily will the wheels of the commercial machine revolve. Modern conditions demand a medium for effecting the exchange of commodities, and at the moment that medium is paper, the unit representing the value of a fixed amount of gold. The total amount of paper and credit released throughout the world exceeds by thousands of millions sterling the world's total gold accumulation, so that the real security for modern currencies is not the yellow metal but productive wealth. Gold functions to-day only as a stabilizing factor on international exchange rates and it is now doing more harm than good—in fact, it represents the preponderant cause of the industrial stagnation.

During the War, gold was abandoned and free paper currencies became the order of the day, the value of the unit depending on the quantity issued. England was obliged to inflate to provide the Government with purchasing power and the value of the unit fell far below gold parity, while Sweden, by the adoption of a gold exclusion policy, managed to push her paper currency above that parity. These cases serve as examples of how the value of a free paper currency in relation to gold and commodities in general can be controlled by restricting or increasing the output.

The first step in introducing a free paper currency would be of a domestic nature—the stabilising of the value of the unit—in relation to commodities in general. The banks would be furnished with statistics from which the current general price level would be obtained and the issue of currency would be regulated to maintain that level. Statistics of trade, general economic conditions and production would also be available to enable the banking world accurately to anticipate the volume of currency that the future would require for stability.

Prices of commodities in relation to each other would continue to fluctuate but by maintaining a stable relationship between the value of the currency unit and commodities in general we should be as near a perfect exchange system as it is possible to get. Later on, we could embark upon the stabilisation of commodity values in relation to each other by control of production.

The question of foreign exchange stability would depend on whether our neighbours could be persuaded to adopt the scheme. The banks would be subject to Government control with the nation's total wealth as the guarantee, and just how far one country would be prepared to go on the quantity issued. Eng-

CORRESPONDENCE.

The World Crisis.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—Own views on things in general are moulded, to a very great extent, by the daily paper we read. The writer of leading articles is a specialist and the man-in-the-street bows to his ideas as readily as he does to the decrees of his medical man. It would appear, therefore, that I am laying myself open to the charge of presumption in questioning views propounded by the paper that has been my educational medium for nearly four years. However, a fool may now and then be right, by chance, and as "even the eagle suffers little birds to sing," perhaps you will let me attempt to justify my criticism.

To my mind we do not require bimetalism to restore two-fifths of the world's population their purchasing power. The slump of silver merely deprived China of one half of the value of her hoardings and of the paper actually in circulation at that time. The purchasing power of China in foreign markets is her surplus commodity production, the intrinsic value of which is unaffected by any drop in her international exchange rate. Given time for readjustment, her exports are bound to command the same sterling prices that they did before, and wages, the purchasing power of the labouring classes, will ultimately pick up to their former intrinsic worth. Looking at it from the viewpoint of China's development, the silver slump should, by reason of temporarily cheap labour, give an impetus to her export trade. This will in turn help her trade balance, enable her to absorb more silver and assist in the recovery of the metal she has hoarded. To put it briefly, the workers, for a time, will have to submit to low wages to enable the employers to recuperate, and as trade brightens up the purchasing power of the workers will rise.

Before offering a solution to the world's industrial depression I would like to put two questions on bimetalism:

(1) Assuming that an international agreement could be arrived at whereby silver reserves were maintained by the banks and utilized for the stabilizing of international money rates, what would there be to prevent two countries, bent on industrial domination, secretly combining with the object of ridding themselves of their silver, accumulating gold and then declaring a silver exclusion policy? The price of the white metal would immediately slump and the gold holders would have achieved financial and industrial supremacy.

(2) With the increased demand for silver under bimetalism, would the enhanced price not encourage heavier production and how could stability be maintained with a metal that has lost the essential merit of being rare in coming up from the earth as a by-product? It is possible that bimetalism could be introduced to the world's advantage at the moment, but the complexity of our exchange system would be tremendously increased thereby and too much would depend on international goodwill and confidence to ensure any permanent improvement in our industrial affairs. There is another way out of the difficulty which combines simplicity with safety.

By real, hard wealth, I mean anything that can be applied to the production of the necessities of life. land was obliged to inflate to provide the Government with purchasing power and the value of the unit fell far below gold parity, while Sweden, by the adoption of a gold exclusion policy, managed to push her paper currency above that parity. These cases serve as examples of how the value of a free paper currency in relation to gold and commodities in general can be controlled by restricting or increasing the output.

The first step in introducing a free paper currency would be of a domestic nature—the stabilising of the value of the unit—in relation to commodities in general. The banks would be furnished with statistics from which the current general price level would be obtained and the issue of currency would be regulated to maintain that level. Statistics of trade, general economic conditions and production would also be available to enable the banking world accurately to anticipate the volume of currency that the future would require for stability.

Prices of commodities in relation to each other would continue to fluctuate but by maintaining a stable relationship between the value of the currency unit and commodities in general we should be as near a perfect exchange system as it is possible to get. Later on, we could embark upon the stabilisation of commodity values in relation to each other by control of production.

The question of foreign exchange stability would depend on whether our neighbours could be persuaded to adopt the scheme. The banks would be subject to Government control with the nation's total wealth as the guarantee, and just how far one country would be prepared to go on the quantity issued. Eng-

Since we never hold so called sales, our prices are never inflated to provide a margin for later reductions. There is extremely gratifying evidence that the sanity and honesty of these principles have earned the approval of our customers.

CHARITY FOOTBALL.

SOUTH CHINA BEAT THE COMBINED SERVICES.

FIRST OF SEASON.

Local football made its bow to the public for the opening of the 1931-32 season on Saturday, when, on the Club ground, South China met the Combined Services in a charity match. South China came out winners by three goals to one, though the evenness of the exchanges suggested a drawn match as a better result.

H.E. the Governor was present, and kicked off, while others who watched the game were, H.E. Major-General J. W. Sandilands, Hon. Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotovall, and the Rev. J. C. Knight Anstey.

Although winning by two goals clear, the Chinese were hardly value for this margin, and only a desperate defending during several periods of the game, saved their citadel from falling on more than one occasion.

The football was clean and fast, with the Chinese, as usual, ever ready to snap up the slightest opportunity in front of goal. It was this which gave Fung his first goal in the opening ten minutes, which was added to half way through the first half.

The Services, however, were not idle, and with the same steadiness in shooting as revealed by their opponents, would assuredly have obtained some goals. As it was the deficit was reduced just before the interval, when Dickinson scored from a penalty.

The exchanges were very keen in the closing half, with each goal being visited in turn. Pau did some fine work in the South China goal, and after saving brilliantly from Dickinson, sent Fung King-cheung away to notch the third point. The Services were striving right up to the close, but were denied any success.

The receipts of the match were divided between the Flood Relief Fund and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home.

G. B. LANE WINS THE BOGEY POOL.

There were 24 entries for the Bogy Pool at Fanling during the week-end. A. B. Lane (6), all square, won.
Other scores were D. M. MacDougall (8) one down, and W. R. Vallance (9), two down.

GOLF as the STARS play it

FORGET YOUR TROUBLES ON THE PUTTING GREEN

What mental attitude should one have on the putting green?

Often it is hard to make a beginner realize the value of a putt. Perhaps he is impatient and refuses to study carefully the line of the putt or the roll of the green. Perhaps it is just his inconsistency. He may hole a 40-footer or he may miss a two-footer. Anything may happen to him, but nothing with consistent regularity which makes for good golf.

Mental condition has a greater bearing on the putting green than in any other department of play. Worries over your score on the last hole, a business deal back in town or personal worries will affect your putting more easily than in driving, for instance.
One must have a "cool" clear head on the green, putting all thoughts out of your mind save the one of sending the ball to the bottom of the cup.—ART SCHMIDT

MACKAY—CHOSEN OF THE GODS.

MISSED FOUR TIMES IN INNINGS OF 97.

Norman Mackay, the youthful K.C.C. wicket-keeper-batsman made a distinctive bow to the cricket season on Saturday, when in an inter-club match between E. C. Finch's and J. C. Lyle's elevens, he compiled 97 before dismissal.
In the bold effort, however, he was assisted by the smiles of fortune and some poor fielding, so that he was four times let off before he eventually fell to a ball from Goodwin. He should have been stamped on three occasions, but his innings was none the less interesting, if only by reason of his vigorous hitting, which yielded him nine boundaries and four 3's.

The best batting of the day, however, came from F. Zimmern, whose confident and stylish strokes yielded him 44 runs. He remained undefeated until the closure was applied with the score at 184 for five wickets.
J. C. Lyle met with no success with the ball, but Goodwin, improving as the innings progressed, eventually returned an analysis of three for 43. K. H. Batger obtained the other two wickets for ten runs in two overs. He might have been used to better effect earlier in the innings.

Lyle's men, apart from F. E. Lawrence and F. W. Smith, offered little resistance to the attack of E. F. Finch, G. C. Burnett and F. Zimmern, and were all out for 92. The second wicket fell at 56, but thereafter it was just a procession. Lawrence hit well and with good judgment for his 29, while Smith revealed facility of strokes and an appreciation of loose balls in gathering 27.

TENNIS AT CANTON.

HONGKONG PLAYERS IN EXHIBITION.

Exhibition tennis matches were played at Canton on Saturday and yesterday between C. A. L. Rumjahn, J. A. E. Cassumbhoy and Dennis H. Hazell, of Hongkong and H. Bodiker, Leung Tat-kwong, Ma Chi-huen of Canton.

On Saturday, Bodiker beat Rumjahn in singles, and Leung and Ma beat Hazell and Cassumbhoy at doubles. One match was left undecided.

The matches, under the patronage of the Governor of Canton and Admiral Chan, were in aid of the Hankow Flood Relief Fund.

Bodiker beats Rumjahn.
Bodiker, who is rapidly improving in all phases of the game, particularly on a hard court, obtained a spectacular victory over C. A. L. Rumjahn, the scores reading 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

The five-set duel was carried out almost entirely from the baseline, where the men, delighted the spectators with long rallies featuring beautiful drives. The fact that Bodiker eventually hit harder than Rumjahn, who learnt his tennis on hard courts, is but illustrative of the excellence of his play.

"C.A.L." took the first set to comfortably as to suggest a complete overwhelming of the Canton representative but Bodiker recovered, won the next set to 6, lost the third at the twelfth game, captured the fourth at the tenth, and was unstoppable in the fifth, in which he conceded but two games.

The Doubles.
Lator Ma Chi-huen, partnering Leung Tat-kwong, trounced D. Hazell and J. A. E. Cassumbhoy 6-1, 6-2, to put Canton two up, while the fourth match of the day was left undecided. Rumjahn suffering from cramp which forced him to give up.
This was rather unfortunate, as this doubles match, in which Bodiker and Leung were opposed to Rumjahn and Hazell, was expected to be one of the highlights of the day's programme.

BUSINESS MEN OF
FAR EAST.INVITED TO TRADE COUNCIL MEETING.

HONOLULU PARLEY.

Mr. John A. Hamilton, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu, has been commissioned to make a tour of the Orient on the maiden voyage of the s.s. President Hoover to invite businessmen of China, Japan, and the Philippines to attend the 1932 annual meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council in Honolulu May 4, 5, and 6.

The National Foreign Trade Council was organized in 1914 in order that constant and continued effort might be devoted to the development of a national committee for the welfare of overseas commerce. Once a year its members meet to study and consider present day problems in overseas trade. The 1932 meeting in Honolulu will be under the direction of the Chairman, James A. Farrell, President of the U. S. Steel Corporation. The programme will include vital topics of interest to foreign traders, with development of commerce in the Pacific a major theme. Trade Adviser Service by men of wide experience and able qualification will be available during the sessions. Reduced steamer and hotel rates will be effective at the time of the National Foreign Trade meeting.

Important Assembly.

In discussing this meeting Mr. Hamilton said: "Business leaders of the United States recognize that this will be the most important assembly ever held in the Pacific area. For the first time this great organization—one of the most important trade assemblies of the world—will hold a meeting of the North American continent. Its journey into mid-Pacific for 1932 is significant of the steady trend of world business towards the Pacific area. There has never before been such an impressive token of recognition of the importance of the Pacific as this decision to journey more than two thousand miles from continental United States to hold a business assembly by an organization."

"There is a very distinct purpose and desire in this journey into mid-Pacific and that is that the business leaders of continental United States may be able to greet business leaders of the Orient and Australasia. President Farrell of the U. S. Steel Corporation is keenly interested in extending to these representatives of Pacific countries a cordial welcome to the May meeting."

"The programme will be shaped with the thought definitely in mind of emphasizing Pacific circumstances, conditions, problems, and opportunities. We hope to have at this meeting business leaders of the first rank who will appear upon the speaking programme."

Fine Opportunity.

"This 1932 meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council affords to the countries of the Orient perhaps the best opportunity they have ever had in all history of voicing before a great assembly of business leaders their thoughts, suggestions, and comments on current economic and social questions. My visit to the Orient is to make as many personal calls as possible upon the leading business organizations and individuals so that by these personal calls we may develop greater interest in the 1932 meeting and develop also definite prospects for attendance next May."

"To all of the businessmen of the Orient who are interested in foreign trade and interested in developing relations with the countries of the Occident, may I say that this meeting will be a unique opportunity? We can also promise for the delegates and their families a full test of that cordial hospitality and delightful entertainment for which Hawaii is noted. The picturesque welcome which we call Aloha to visitors at the 'Cross Roads of the Pacific' will be as sincere as our invitation to the business sessions."

Mr. Hamilton will make the round trip on the s.s. President Hoover so that returning from the terminus of the route, Manila, he will revisit the cities called at on the outward trip. He may be interviewed at the offices of the U. S. Trade Commissioner in Exchange Building.

sent Nanking with a grievance. —Reuter.

Moving on Yingchow.

Japanese troops surrounded Shenyang at three o'clock this morning, and the town fell into their hands two hours later. They are now reported from Peking to be moving on Yingchow.

Dr. C. T. Wang, interviewed today, said that an official report showed that the Japanese troops fired on Chinese troops stationed at Peking at ten o'clock on Friday evening. The Chinese offered no resistance. They were dispersed by the attackers.

Simultaneously, the arsenal and Puting Camp were bombarded. A motor depot was destroyed and a motor factory occupied. There were many casualties.

By 6.30 a.m. Mukden was in the hands of the Japanese.

"Unprovoked" Attack.

"The National Government," said Dr. Wang, "is greatly exercised over the situation caused by the unprovoked attack of the Japanese troops, and besides lodging vigorous protests with the Japanese Government, appropriate steps are being taken to apprise the League of Nations and Powers signatory to the Kellogg Pact of unwarranted actions on the part of the Japanese."

Tokyo Political Move?

Commenting on the situation, foreign observers suggest that the military movement in Manchuria is a direct attempt by the military party in Tokyo to overthrow the Liberal Ministry. It is said that the real test in Tokyo is whether the civil or the military shall control the Japanese Government. —Sino News Service.

Nanking Battle.

It is learned that the most serious encounter in Manchuria apart from the original clash outside Mukden, was the fighting that preceded the Japanese occupation of Nanking to the south of Changchun. A Chinese battalion is reported to have been almost entirely wiped out by artillery fire.

The Japanese casualties were 40 dead, including a lieutenant, and 60 wounded, including a battalion commander. The Chinese casualties were numerous.

Danger Spot.

There is apprehension of a serious situation developing around Changchun. The Kirin troops, the finest in the Chinese army, may attempt to overwhelm the Japanese, whom they greatly outnumber.

A serious situation is reported to prevail at Fushun, where the Chinese are reported to have trained guns on the mines, while the Japanese are endeavouring to persuade them to disarm.

According to another report, Japanese troops captured Changtu, northward of Tiehling, this morning, after heavy fighting.

A Harbin report states that according to a Manchurian message, Soviet troops in the Dauria district have started moving, apparently with the purpose of strengthening the frontier defence, owing to the Sino-Japanese situation.

Mukden city has been placed under a municipal administration, with Colonel Kojiro Doihara as Mayor. Other officials are being chosen from the association of local Japanese residents. —Reuter.

paved to advance credit to another would depend, as it does today, on political relationships and security offering. It would be in every country's vital interests to maintain as steady an internal currency value as possible, and the first essential would be to see that budgets were balanced without recourse to the printing press. Internal or external loans might be necessary to ensure this till trade fully revived.

In addition to promoting trade in those countries that are being at present forced to restrict credit through lack of gold, the scheme would materially assist in the world's recovery by partially wiping out international indebtedness. With the currency demanded for gold withdrawn, the value of that metal would depreciate and the intrinsic value of gold debts would drop with it.

The important point to get into our heads is that any nation that possesses the natural resources, the skilled labour and machinery necessary for the production of life's requirements, wants nothing more than stability of its currency value to achieve unlimited prosperity. And "discusses desperate grown; by desperate appliances are relieved or not at all."

There is one big obstacle in the way, however. The present system lends itself too well to speculation

RECENT ROBBERY
RECALLED.TWO MEN CHARGED AT THE SESSIONS.

MISSING WITNESS.

A robbery at an unnumbered hut at Old Kowloon Tong was recalled at the Criminal Sessions this morning when two men, Kong Fu and Tsang Sang, were charged in connection with the affair before the Police Judge (Mr. Justice Lindell) and a jury. They were alleged to have robbed So Ying of various articles of clothing, a sheet, a pair of rattan gold-mounted bangles, a gold neck chain, and a pair of ear-rings, and Tsang Sang and Wong Luk-mul of gold rings. There was an alternative count against each man of receiving.

The following jury was empanelled:—Messrs. A. A. Alves (foreman), P. W. R. Tamany, C. W. Langley, C. V. Jensen, Bhagwan Ditta, Ho Chung-chow and Lee Chiu-lung.

Mr. Somerset Fitzroy, for the Crown, in explaining his case, said here was another man Li Sang, who was charged, but it became necessary for him to turn King's evidence in order to obtain sufficient evidence against the other two. As was customary, he was bound over to appear at the Sessions but, although search had been made for him, he could not be found. He would, therefore, ask permission to read that man's evidence in accordance with the Evidence Act.

"Worth Having."

Mr. Fitzroy continued that on August 5, Kong approached Li Sang and said he knew a place they could rob where they might get something worth having. The two men had been acquainted since last April and another meeting was held on August 8 which was attended by Tsang Sang, Ng and Chiu. They agreed to go out and commit the robbery and, for that purpose, separated into two parties. Li and Ng comprised one party while prisoners and Chiu comprised the other.

They set out at about half past eleven on the 8th and proceeded towards the hut, near which place Kong and Ng dug up a couple of iron bars which had apparently been hidden there in preparation. They watched the hut until about half past twelve, after which they forced the door open with the bars and told the women occupants to keep quiet, which they did.

The robbers then ransacked the place, in the course of which they broke open a box and took a lot of clothing, as well as jewellery, after which they left, deposited the proceeds in a hut, and returned to Shamshu.

Articles Recovered.

On August 10, Kong was walking along the street with a bundle under his arm, when he was stopped by a Chinese detective and taken to the police station, where it was found that the bundle contained some of the stolen articles. As a result of what he said Li Sang was arrested on August 15, as also was Tsang Sang, who took the police round various pawnshops resulting in some of the stolen property being recovered.

When charged with the robbery, Kong Fu said he did not go to the robbery, but explained that clothing was taken but no jewellery. When charged with receiving, he said, "I didn't receive the stolen property. We robbed them ourselves."

Tsang Sang said he did not go to the robbery, adding that Chiu Sing took him there. "He asked me to do something. He said 'If you go I will tell you.' At first I didn't know we were going to rob. No jewellery was robbed, only several pieces of clothing. To a charge of receiving he replied, 'I didn't receive the stolen property. Chiu Sing told me to carry it for him and he pawned it himself.'"

Both men were found guilty on the first charge of committing an armed robbery, and were sentenced to three years' hard labour.

INDIAN R.C. ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.RECORD IN HISTORY OF THE CLUB.

The record created by the Indian Recreation Club in winning four shields in one season in the tennis and cricket leagues was mentioned by the chairman, Mr. A. el Arculli, at the annual general meeting of the Club held on Saturday afternoon.

Reviewing the work of the Club during the past year, Mr. Arculli said it had been the most successful one since the inception of the Club. Besides their success in sports, he pointed to the gratifying balance on the right side of the accounts, for which they had a great deal to be thankful to Mr. Badan Singh, the Hon. Treasurer, who was responsible for this excellent state of affairs.

The Chairman congratulated the captains of the "A" and "B" teams, which carried off both shields in the cricket league, and the captains of the "A" and "B" Mixed Doubles tennis league for their success, thereby creating a record. He made special reference to the work of Mr. A. H. Bhandari, the Hon. Secretary, who led the senior cricket team to victory for the first time.

In proposing that Mr. Arculli be re-elected President of the Club, Mr. M. Omar paid tribute to his good work for the Club. It was due partly to Mr. Arculli's untiring efforts in everything that was beneficial to the Club that the Club was in the position it held now. The speaker, and almost everybody else, knew that their president was a man who would put all else aside when the welfare of the Club was at stake.

Mr. Arculli was further honoured when Mr. N. M. Bux proposed that he be made a life-member. This was also unanimously carried.

Mr. Omar then made reference to the good work done by Mr. Badan Singh, who in his capacity as Hon. Treasurer, did not have an enviable task. He had, however, succeeded beyond all expectations, and as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his services, Mr. Ismail proposed that Mr. Badan Singh too be made a life-member. This was carried.

Rumours that Mr. A. A. Rumjahn may be turning out for the University this year were dispelled when he was elected captain of the Club's cricket team by popular choice. Mr. F. D. Pereira was elected vice-captain.

The Officers.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President: Mr. A. el Arculli.
Vice-Presidents: Messrs. Sirdar Khan and Bishen Singh.
Hon. Secretary: Mr. H. T. M. Barmar.
Hon. Treasurer: Mr. R. Nazarin.
Captain 1st XI: Mr. A. A. Rumjahn.
Vice-Captain 1st XI: Mr. F. D. Pereira.
Captain 2nd XI: Mr. M. R. Abbas.
Vice-Captain 2nd XI: Mr. H. T. M. Barmar.
General Committee: Messrs. M. A. Khan, A. H. Madar, Mohinder Singh, N. M. Bux, S. Haroon, A. T. Barmar, A. R. Minu, S. A. R. Ismail, Badan Singh, R. M. Omar, F. D. Pereira, M. P. Barmar.

PRISON DEPT.

The keenness of the aquatic rivalry between the Police and Prison Departments was once again demonstrated at the V.R.C. on Saturday, when the annual aquatic sports proved a successful and enjoyable as any yet held.

There was not a dull moment throughout the afternoon, and the fun was shared equally by the contestants and those who watched, the latter including H.E. the Governor, Mr. Justice Lindell, Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe (I. G. P.), Mrs. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franks, Mr. W. Schofield, Mr. E. H. Williams, and Mr. E. W. Hamilton.

Subsequent to the events, Mrs. J. W. Franks, wife of the Prison Superintendent, distributed the prizes, and during intervals, and afterwards for dancing, Mickey's Melody Makers entertained in favourite style.

"IGNOMINY OF ARREST"

BENCH AND SIR ANTHONY
LINDSAY-HOGG.

London, Aug. 29.

Sir Anthony Lindsay-Hogg, whose address was given as Draycott-place, Chelsea, and whose arrest was ordered at the previous sitting of the Uckfield Bench, yesterday surrendered to the bail which he had been granted, and produced a duplicate of his motor driving licence for endorsement following a conviction. He explained that he had lost the original licence.

Sir Anthony should have attended with the licence at two previous sittings of the Bench, but did not do so, and on the last occasion sent a telegram stating that he would be writing. As no letter was received the Bench ordered his arrest.

The Chairman of the Justices (Major R. L. Thornton) yesterday pointed out that Sir Anthony had treated the Court with discourtesy, but it was not so much discourtesy to the Bench as discourtesy to the King, in whose name the law ran. He thought that Sir Anthony was one of those people who led to the allegation—which was entirely false—that there was one law for the rich and one for the poor.

He (Major Thornton) adapted the words of Horace: "The law stalks with equal tread over the mansions of the rich and the cottages of the poor."

"You have," added the Chairman, "suffered the ignominy of being arrested, and have dishonoured your name. It was quite unnecessary."

Major Thornton said that the Bench were not going to take the discourtesy into consideration in the fine, which would be £1 for the actual offence. They considered that the ignominy brought upon him was sufficient punishment.

Sir Anthony bowed to the Justices and left the Court.

AQUATIC SPORTS AT NORTH POINT.

A. A. FEDERATION COMPETITIONS.

The annual aquatic meeting, open to all Chinese Clubs in the Colony, under the auspices of the Hongkong Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation, was held yesterday in the enclosure of the Chinese Bathing Club pavilion at North Point. The keenness displayed in this section of the Federation's activities was evidenced by the large crowd of both sexes which thronged the pavilion, and many exciting and close contests were witnessed.

The result of the competitions was that the South China Athletic Association gained the position of the premier Chinese swimming organization of the Colony, securing a big lead over the Chinese Bathing Club, which obtained 25½ points. South China's members were successful in both the men's and women's sections. Chan Ki-chung emerging as the Champion of the meet and a lady member, Miss Yeung Sau-king, securing premier position for her sex.

In point of fact, Chan Ki-chung, dead-headed with Leung Shui-man, of the Chinese Bathing Club for championship points, each securing 18. But the Federation rules had provided that the winner of the 100 Metres was to be adjudged the champion, and as it was that Chan Ki-chung, who won this event, was able to secure the title.

The prizes are to be distributed, together with those in respect of the field and track events, at a later date.

CHURCH CALL TO NEW MINISTER.

REV. DR. ALLEN FOR KOWLOON.

At a special meeting yesterday of members and adherents of the Union Church, Jordan Road, Kowloon, held immediately after the morning service and presided over by the Rev. F. Short, it was unanimously decided to accept the recommendation of the Rev. Dr. Berry, Secretary of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, that the Rev. Dr. Leonard Allen, M.A., B.Sc., Ph.D., be appointed Pastor of the Church.

A cable is being sent Home conveying the decision and an invitation to the Rev. Dr. Allen.

The Rev. Dr. Allen is no stranger to Hongkong, for he stayed here some little time prior to returning Home three years ago. He preached on one occasion at the Union Church, Kennedy Road.

Coming from old English stock, Dr. Allen has had a brilliant academic career. After graduating from Cambridge, he came out to China and was engaged in missionary work at Swatow, near Swatow, until the area became a centre of disturbance through the activities of pirates and communists and he was forced to leave. He returned to England and was appointed Minister of Green Lane Presbyterian Church, at Liverpool, and then went to Cardiff, succeeding the Rev. Dr. Ivor Robertson as Minister of the local English Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Allen, the wife of the Minister-Elect, is also a missionary. During the war she was Secretary of the Sailors' and Soldiers' Families Association at Liverpool. She then went to Carey Hall at Birmingham to train for the missionary field, and was appointed to Swatow where she met and married Dr. Allen. Dr. and Mrs. Allen have one child, three years of age.

If Dr. Allen accepts the appointment, it is expected that he will arrive here about November. He will be warmly welcomed by the congregation of the Church to whom his acceptance of the appointment will give great satisfaction.

NAVAL UNREST.

TROUBLE NOW ALMOST BLOWN OVER.

London, Sept. 19. No sign of unrest in the navy was visible when Portsmouth and Devonport manned ships of the Atlantic fleet returned this morning from Invergordon. Several vessels arrived from Sheerness yesterday.

There was not the slightest sign of any departure from normal routine. The Sheerness men were yesterday given shore leave and the usual week-end leave was granted to-day. Ratings seemed happy and contented, and press messages say that in conversation they expressed themselves well satisfied with the Admiralty's promise to investigate any cases of hardships arising out of the pay cuts.

Instructions are being issued to Commanding Officers of ships and establishments to forward to the HOME LEAVE.

AMERICAN CONSUL GENERAL DEPARTS.

The American Consul General and Mrs. Douglas Jenkins left Hongkong yesterday morning by the a.s. President Fillmore for Europe en route to the United States on home leave. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins plan to make a tour of Italy, France, Germany, and the United Kingdom, arriving in the United States the early part of December.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins arrived here in April of this year when Mr. Jenkins assumed charge of the Consulate General and in the short time they have been here have made a host of friends who will miss them for the six months they will be on leave.

Mr. John R. Putnam, formerly the American Consul at Amoy, has been assigned to the Consulate General here and will be in charge during Mr. Jenkins' absence. Mr. Putnam was with the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service from 1895 to 1908. He joined the American Consular Service in 1915 and since that time has served at Barcelona and Valencia, Spain; Habana, Cuba; Shanghai, Nanking, Foochow, Chefoo, and Amoy. With his varied experience in different parts of the world and residence temporarily in the residence of the Hon. Mr. J. Owen Hughes, at No. 402, The Peak, which has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins for the past few months.

Mrs. Putnam arrived from Amoy on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Putnam will reside temporarily in the residence of the Hon. Mr. J. Owen Hughes, at No. 402, The Peak, which has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins for the past few months.

ACTION BY TEACHERS.

HUGE PETITION AGAINST SALARY CUTS.

London, Sept. 19. The newest move by school teachers in their protest against salary cuts is that of a petition bearing 16,000 signatures urging all members of the L.C.C. to approach the Government to give up this "harsh and unjustifiable treatment."

That ten thousand pounds had been spent in the last week, putting the case of the teachers before the public, was revealed at a mass meeting of ten thousand school-teachers at Westminster yesterday.

The meeting was called in protest against the fifteen per cent. cut in salary ordered under the economy scheme. Sir Ernest Graham Little, M.P., was cheered when he expressed the opinion that the cuts were worse than unjust, but boos and derisive laughter greeted his warning that the position would not be saved by violence, but by reasonable argument.—Reuter.

BANKRUPT TRICK ALLEGED.

WANTED MAN GIVES HIMSELF UP.

A further development in the case concerning an alleged bank-note trick by which a Chinese journalist, Wong To-jo, is said to have been defrauded of $7,000 by an elaborate process, occurred yesterday when a man gave himself up to the police, and was identified as Guilherme A. D'Araujo Guimaraes, for whose apprehension there had been an offer of reward.

Guilherme Guimaraes is also known by two other aliases, namely William Guimaraes and An Kun, and he is described as the brother of Leo Arturo Guimaraes, who, together with an alleged Chinese associate, named Kong Sze-yik, is being tried at the Sessions.

Guilherme Guimaraes was brought before Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court this morning, when a week's formal remand was granted.

On behalf of the accused, Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios applied for bail. The police opposed the application at that stage.

While agreeing to having the application adjourned, Mr. Remedios asked his Worship to take note of the fact that the accused had voluntarily given himself up.

BRITAIN FORCED OFF THE GOLD STANDARD.

no alternative but to protect the financial position of this country by the only means at our disposal. The Government are securing a balanced budget and the internal position of the country is sound. This position must be maintained. It is one thing to go off the gold standard with an unbalanced budget and uncontrolled inflation, and it is quite another thing to take this measure not because of internal financial difficulties, but because of excessive withdrawals of borrowed capital.

There will be no interruption of ordinary banking business. The banks will open as usual for the convenience of customers and there is no reason why sterling transactions should be affected in any way.

The banks have undertaken to co-operate in restricting the purchase by British citizens of foreign exchange except those required for the actual needs of trade or for meeting existing contracts. Government officials state that the export of capital by British nationals will be controlled with the co-operation of the banks and the purchase of foreign securities will be officially discouraged.

"Play the Game." "Play the Game" will be the Government slogan to the British people and every confidence is expressed that the country will soon be back upon an even keel.

One of the Cabinet Ministers said: "What we want is cold courage and warm feet."

Officials at No. 10, Downing Street pointed out that the world is at present very panicky.

The situation had been precipitated by lack of confidence on the part of countries who had funds in Great Britain, and to a lesser degree, as a result of the sensational stories cabled abroad about the naval unrest.

It was emphasised, too, that the abandonment of the gold standard was a measure more precautionary than anything else and the shrewd commonsense and patriotism of the British people would prevent anything like a scare or a panic.

At the same time it was intimated that the Government would take immediate and drastic steps to prevent any acts of an unpatriotic or an unnational nature on the part of persons thinking in their own selfish interests. It was hoped that such steps would be unnecessary, and in any case no attempt would be made by the authorities to carry matters to extremes provided no deliberate attacks were made upon exchange.

Premier's Week-End.

During the crisis of the last forty-eight hours, the Prime Minister has remained in closest touch with his advisers. He proceeded to Chequers on Friday afternoon in the belief that everything was running normally. Shortly after he left London.

Information was received regarding the events in other capitals, and the situation thus revealed caused him to return immediately from Chequers to No. 10, Downing Street.

Throughout Saturday and Sunday, the members of the Cabinet, when not actually in session, remained in the closest touch.

Prince on Spot.

The Prince of Wales, who returned from his holiday yesterday, flying home from Paris to Windsor Castle, lunched with the Premier to-day, and on receiving information regarding the course of events, decided not to proceed to Scotland as arranged but to remain in London.

The closing of the Stock Exchange to-day will not interfere with the business of current settlement which will be carried through as usual.

Reuter and British Wireless.

Wall Street Approves.

New York, Sept. 21. The partial suspension of the Gold Standard Act in Great Britain is applauded in Wall Street as a constructive measure, dictated by the present emergency.

It is pointed out that the suspension will not affect the recent loans to Great Britain by the Federal Reserve Bank and the Morgan Syndicate which are specifically payable in gold dollars, nor will it affect the service of the bulk of British dollar bonds held in the United States.

It is expected that the British banking authorities will control foreign exchange transactions on lines similar to the steps adopted in Germany.

Stock Exchange Uneasy.

While the development has caused considerable uneasiness in Stock Exchange circles, Wall Street bankers are of the opinion that the decision will have less effect on the American banking system since the American short-term balances held in London are small compared with those in Germany.

The American banks maintain only small balances in London for their clients. It is estimated that these do not exceed $350,000,000.

A Constructive Move.

Authoritative quarters in Washington are of opinion that the future of Great Britain now lies largely in the hands of private Englishmen and bankers. The partial suspension of the Gold Standard Act is considered a constructive move which should prove effective in restoring the stability of exchange.

Denmark Affected.

Copenhagen, Sept. 21. As a result of the partial suspension of the Gold Standard Act in Great Britain, it has been decided to suspend the quotation of stocks on the Copenhagen Bourse.

GERMANY ALSO IN TROUBLE.

HIGH BANK RATE EXPECTED.

Berlin, Sept. 20. One of the members of the House Committee informed Reuter's correspondent that there is no doubt that the Berlin Stock Exchange will be closed as from to-morrow.

The Committee meets on Monday forenoon to announce this step.

Further measures expected to-morrow are a severer restriction of trade in foreign currencies and an increase in the Reichsbank discount rate.—Reuter.

A TAXI-DRIVER'S TRICK.

METER WHICH KEPT ON REGISTERING.

Merely as a warning to taxi-drivers in general, Detective Sergeant Kennedy brought a driver before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of failing to raise the flag immediately after the completion of a journey.

According to the officer, he engaged the taxi at Peider Street and was driven to the Wanchai Police Station. He noticed that the meter read 70 cents and gave that sum to the driver. No sooner had the officer gone into the station than the driver appeared and demanded another ten cents, remarking that the journey was 80 cents. On returning to the taxi, Sergeant Kennedy found that the meter then registered 90 cents.

The defendant claimed that he had raised the flag, but when asked to explain how the meter continued to register, the defendant replied that he did not know anything about the mechanism of the meter.

On convicting the defendant, his Worship registered a caution.

NANKING'S WELCOME.

GREAT RECEPTION FOR LINDBERGH.

Nanking, Sept. 19. A vociferous welcome was given to Col. Charles Lindbergh and his wife when they arrived from Fukuoka at 2.36 p.m. to-day.

Thousands of Chinese and a large number of officials in addition to the whole of the foreign community were on the waterfront to greet the fliers.—Reuter.

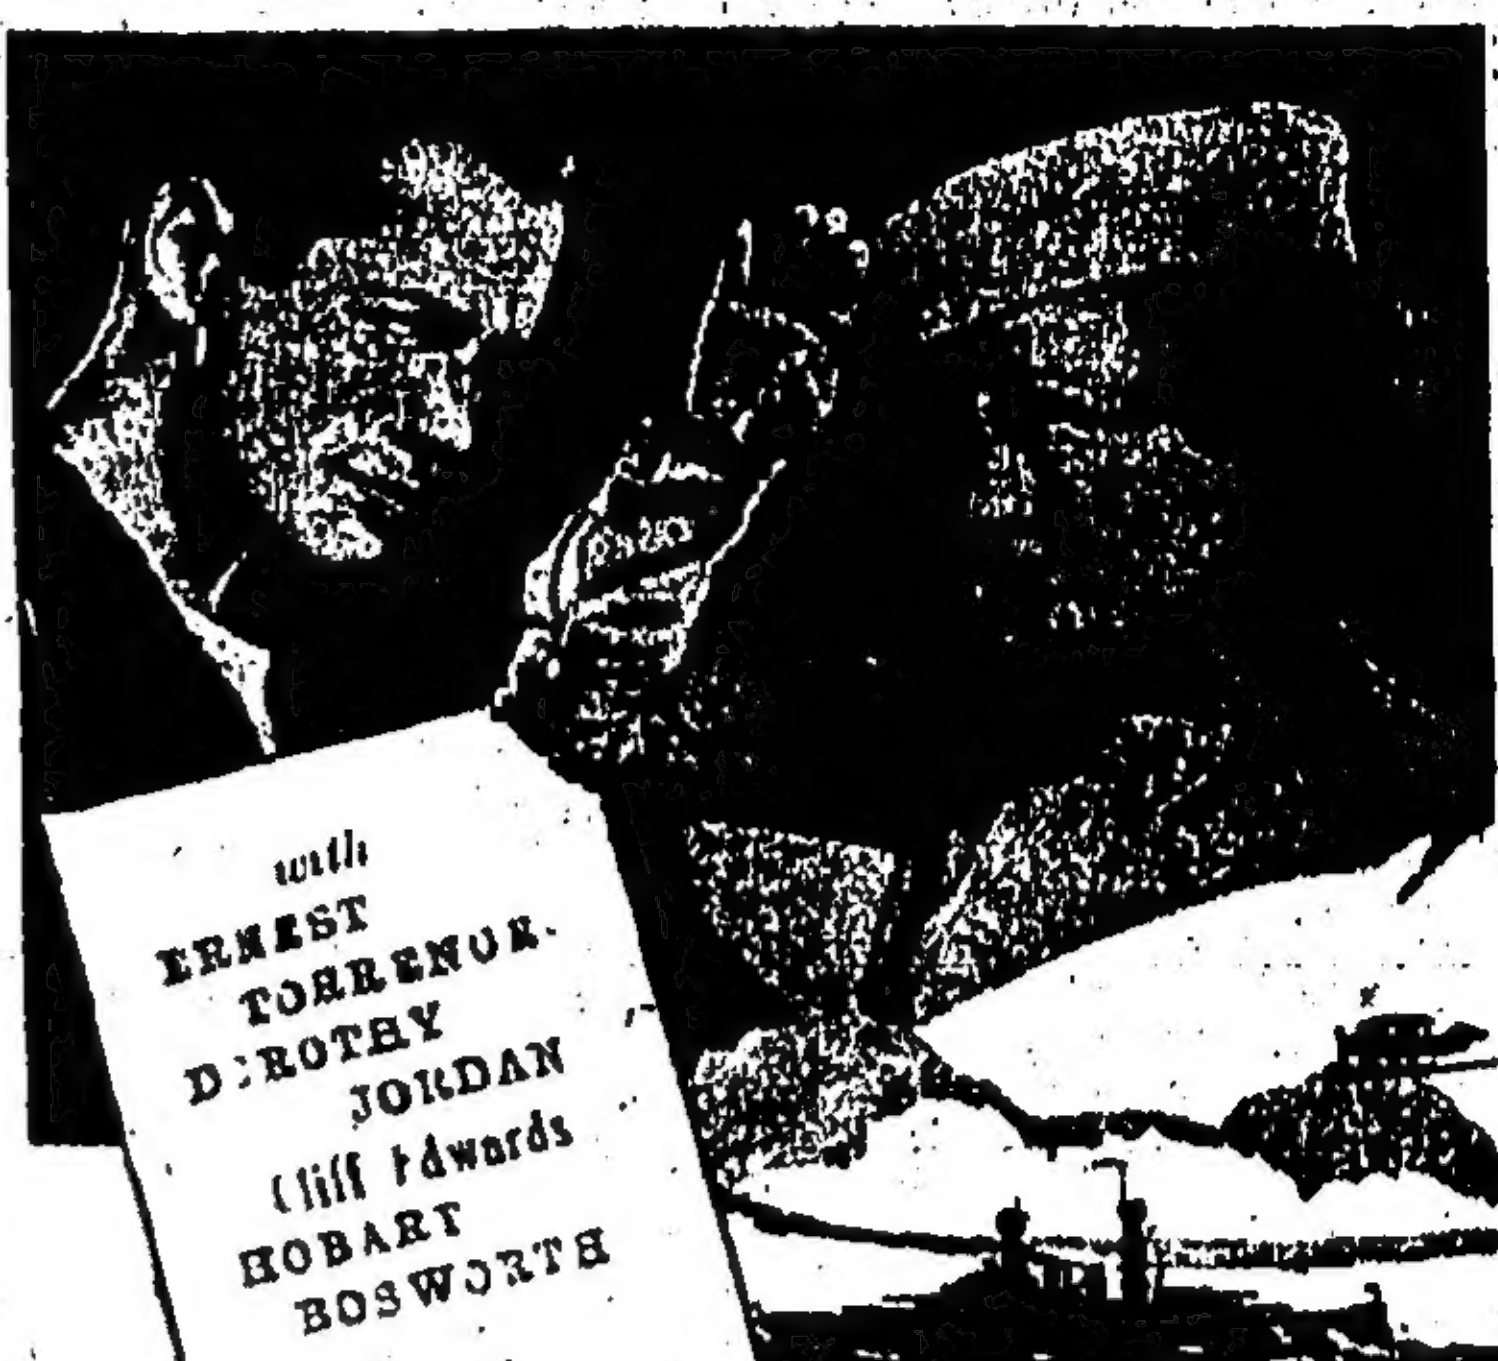

Nanking, Sept. 20.

Colonel Lindbergh has offered to place his aeroplane and himself at the service of the Flood Relief Commission.

He conferred to-day with Mr. J. H. Liu, Director of Public Health, who is a member of the Commission.—Reuter.
